

SURFINIA

The Surfinia is a hybrid that was born in Japan from the botanical experimentation on the Petunia. Therefore, with its “mother”, the Surfinia shares the Central/Southern American geographical origin and the belonging to the family Solanacee. It is different from the “mother” for the hanging shape and for the dimensions and the colors of the flowers that are bigger than it. The foliage is covered by down and it is slightly sticky; the characteristic trumpet inflorescence blooms only at the end of the hanging branches.

Category: SEASONAL OUTDOOR PLANTS

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

Availability

March, April, May, June

Exposure	Full sun, Half shade
Flowering	Spring, Summer
Water need	Average, High

